Divine wisdom in Family management as a key to a successful Family life

Txt: 1king3:4-14, 23-26; Prov24:3-4

Divine wisdom is the key to building a successful family life.

Through the story of Solomon, we see a king who, despite being at the highest position in the kingdom, acknowledged his limitations and asked God for wisdom rather than riches or power. This shows us that wisdom is different from intelligence, it is the ability to make right decisions and manage well what God entrusts to us.

Many families are not in trouble because they lack material things, but because of unwise decisions. Material possessions without wisdom can create disorder. That is why we should not only ask God for blessings, but first ask for what will help us manage those blessings. Wisdom prepares us to carry what we are praying for.

God's blessings are first spiritual before they become material. Family success is more spiritual than material. When we prioritize what God wants before what we want, He gives us beyond our expectations. If the life Christ gives enters our home first, then health, peace, and provision will find their proper place(john10:10).

A successful family is not built on wealth, but on divine wisdom guiding every decision.
